
From: Martinez, Darcy
Sent: Tuesday, January 18, 2005 11:06 AM
Subject: ENERGY STAR Imaging Equipment Specification Revision Update - January, 2005
Attachments: Preview of TEC TP Changes.pdf

This message is being sent to you on behalf of EPA and DOE's ENERGY STAR® program.

Dear ENERGY STAR Imaging Equipment Stakeholder:

EPA is pleased to share this interim update on its progress to revise the ENERGY STAR specifications for imaging equipment products.

EPA is in the process of revising the Typical Electricity Consumption (TEC) Test Procedure distributed to all stakeholders on September 23, 2004. As you know, comments on this document were requested by October 25, 2004, and EPA continued to receive feedback through January, 2005. Within the next two weeks, EPA will complete its revision and will distribute for review:

- A Revised Draft TEC Test Procedure;
- MS Excel worksheets to illustrate the method for measuring and calculating TEC;
- A rationale document summarizing the changes made since the last distributed version as well as summarizing comments received from stakeholders that have not been incorporated; and
- A cover letter with instructions for submitting comments on the Revised Draft TEC Test Procedure and beginning to test products.

The attached document provides a brief preview of some of the key changes stakeholders can expect to see in the Revised Draft TEC Test Procedure. It is hoped that this summary document will help you prepare to review the full TEC Test Procedure and associated materials in a few weeks.

EPA continues to hope you will be able to attend the March 16 Imaging Equipment stakeholder meeting in Washington, DC. Additional details on the time, location, and brief agenda of this meeting will be forthcoming in the next few weeks, following the distribution of the Revised Draft TEC Test Procedure and associated documents. Full meeting briefing materials will be distributed in February.

Thank you again for your important contributions to this specification revision process.

Darcy Martinez
ICF Consulting

Please note my new last name and e-mail address - dmartinez@icfconsulting.com