

From: answerthisone@gmail.com on behalf of Thermal Sash Windows
To: windows@energystar.gov
Subject: 2014 window rating input
Date: Wednesday, August 29, 2012 1:54:38 PM

I strongly suggest that a more accurate rating of air infiltration be included in the new testing procedures for window product.
It does not make sense to me to use a pass fail rating system, when some windows have a rating of .3 CFM and others have a rating of .01 CFM.
If both windows had a pass rating, when one window has 300 times more air leaking in, it would look like a cover up of the real efficiency comparison.

John Herman

Thermal Sash Window and Door Systems Inc.
531 Pottstown Pike
Chester Springs, Pa 19425
610.458.8641

Window, Doors, Sunrooms, Awnings
Quality products and expert installation
www.thermalsashwindows.com

Want a signature like mine? CLICK HERE.