

Subject: Window Technologies Pathway paper

I think the paper lays out a good approach to analyzing the mountain of data contained in the CPD. It balances the need to be generic and to reduce the very large amount of specific variables into a manageable range. Of course the power of this would be to give the data (spreadsheet) to manufacturers so they could do their own analysis to see how they stack up against others using the same pathways. Hopefully that will be made available soon.
