Comments on the Draft 2 Version 3.0 ENERGY STAR Telephony Specification

Hi,

The current version of the specification includes:

3.4.2 Color and backlit displays shall power down to the default Partial On Mode test state in less than 5 minutes after the cessation of user input.

For a heavily-used phone this could be an irritation to the user especially if they are referring to secondary information on the phone screen like meeting times coming up.

Recommend extending the time to 10 or 15 minutes. For a heavily used phone it will make very little difference to average power consumption, and for very lightly used phones it will make very little difference to average power consumption.

Regards,
Tom
